others carried the mail. C. S. McDearmon was depot agent and when I came to town I boarded at his fine home for over a year. Young Lewis Mac used to take me to dances for miles around: he and John Carroll Stanley. J. W. Cawthon was town manager and W. L. Brown was the mayor, and a good one, too. C. F. James was druggist, W. R. Reynolds was doing an excellent business, ably assisted by his wife. B. M. Blackwell ran a service station where E. T. Guill operates now. Harry Johnson was the manager for Standard Oil and had an office opposite Moses Motor Co. in what we used to call Chinatown. The Pugh brothers took over the "Round House" service station. Prof. L. Crawley and others were backers of a growing garment factory industry. L. B. Harvey was selling pianos and insurance and was one of the best salesmen I ever knew. Miss M. Anna Jones headed the U. D. C. Miss Eula Mae Burton was in her prime as was Eddy Hardy and Miss Dean Johns were loved as veteran school teachers. Prof. Crawley was in his prime as a great principal W. M. Hancock ran the ice plant, and had a hand in the hardware store and the water company. Dr. D. N. Twyman was his partner in the water busines. What a lovable character he was! And Dr. D. A. Christian and Dr. W. L. Ould made Appomattox proud of its doctors. Dr. L. L. Gayle established as our successful dentist. Jim Lucado and Charlie Hanenkrat were partners at the Hi-Way Garage. Ellis was the town family taxi. Bob Craig cared for things at school. And two outstanding R. L. Burks and A. E. Burks were bankers and civic and leaders. J. E. Dinwiddie was master. E. O. Cole ran a fine in town. There was a little shop at the rear of Burks And in the county, E. B. Reid, P. Smith, W. E. Dickerson, Drinkard, C. T. Evans, J. L. ton, J. R. Marks and others fine stores. Capt. Dick Allen G. F. Abbitt were going strong Vera. The county fair was a event, with W. R. Caldwell as up-and-coming young son, in charge. And so we go . . . on. Don't fuss with me if out many names of that fine tion. I was a young kid when get started. So many of them passed on, and so it was that ing Holmes' poem, I understood he felt about: "The last It must be the same, too, when older than I look back upon the of their youth, and perhaps Grandpa or Grandma are just there on the porch, they are dreaming; thinking over old memories.
